Noon Day Camp Fire
by Joyce Ewart

JOYCE EWART, who lived in Chatswood, won a scholarship to East Sydney Technical College, but found the atmosphere under Frank Medworth stifling. She later studied painting under Antonio Dattilo-Rubbo and Lo Schiavo. She was introduced to Zen Buddhism and to the modern art movement. Joyce won numerous prizes and was highly regarded.

Sinn Fein by Edmond Harvey

EDMUND HARVEY of Castlecrag studied with Julian Ashton and at the Académie in Paris. Arthur Streeton hailed him as 'a clever young painter from Sydney.' His painted portraits and landscapes were largely traditional in style.

According to the artist PATTI SOMERSET of Castle Cove, her work is basically abstract. She works in different media, depending on what she is translating into art. Her work is also about people, places and things and the memories they invoke.
